Release # 26-01

Subject: Declaration of a Significant Weather Event

In response to an expected precipitation of freezing rain and ice pellets causing ice accretion or build-up of up to 4 mm with local blowing snow in the area, the Municipality of East Ferris has declared a Significant Weather Event at 3:00 p.m. local time. This weather event will likely impact travel and services throughout the Municipality. This declaration is made pursuant to Ontario Regulation 239/02, Minimum Maintenance Standards for Municipal Highways.

The declaration may change how or when the Municipality performs their maintenance operations and may increase the amount of time to bring the roads back to a state of repair. Municipal Staff are advising residents to avoid driving, and if you must travel, please use extreme caution as the Roads Department may not be able to meet their maintenance standards for roads due to ice accretion.

Please see the Winter Storm Yellow Warning from Environment Canada below.

Impact Level: Moderate

Forecast Confidence: High

From Environment Canada: Freezing rain, snow and ice pellets today.

What: Snow and ice pellet amounts of 10 to 15 cm. Several hours of freezing rain and ice pellets. Ice accretion or build-up of up to 4 mm. Local blowing snow.

When: Continuing today and tapering off tonight.

Additional information: Precipitation is light across portions of northeastern Ontario late this morning, but should intensify late this morning or early afternoon as another wave of precipitation moves in. A wintry mix of snow, ice pellets and freezing rain is expected. Precipitation should change to all snow with local blowing snow this evening before tapering off overnight.

Roads and walkways will likely be difficult to navigate. Travel will likely be challenging. Prepare for quickly changing and deteriorating travel conditions.
